Update on an Fol request

With Freedom of Information Act Requests, it's often more interesting to see what is not answered, as what is. With Interest Tests, it's often also useful to consider whose interests are being protected, and by whom.

How things are done often says far more about why, than what is done.

DISRUPTING THE PRESENT IN SERVICE OF THE FUTURE.

Changing the "reality" of a game by building things.

I also have another blog on which I post links and references that I find worth reading repeatedly.

I've been at least partially responsible for parts of various transparency projects in the UK and beyond, including TheGovernmentSays.com (including regional and Whitehouse and UN versions, leading to Spin Different), www.commentonthis.com, www.notapathefic.com and www.directionlessgov.com and www.mptables.com. I've also built stuff for, and am heavily involved with mySociety. I also offer consulting and printing services in areas of direct interest.

You can contact the author, Sam Smith, on sams@disruptiveproactivity.com or 07980 210 746 (UK). I live in Manchester, UK.
